$150,000 Line Of Credit Design & Manufacturing Firm

This company designs and manufactures testing equipment using proprietary software that simulates large scale processes and production lines. The company needed working capital to fund the building of ordered machines and asked Diamond for help. The company's erratic earnings history and early-stage profile made traditional bank financing difficult. Diamond stepped up with a $150,000 line of credit to help fund general operations and push through the logjammed purchase orders.

The Diamond line of credit has no minimums and no long term commitments so the company can transition to more conventional financing when ready.
